

Mrs Gray:

Head of Y9 and Teacher of Divinity

As a teacher of Divinity, I feel I am able to see student's develop knowledge in ways like no other. Divinity allows students to ask questions which are often steeped in both ethical and philosophical origin, I feel it is a privilege to watch students develop and go through their own religious journey in whatever form that takes. In the classroom I have seen students flourish academically but also learn to live a life of virtue with many leaving St Martin's and continue a life that is steeped in Catholic social teaching.

Throughout my time as a Divinity teacher, I have been able to experience some amazing opportunities, from taking students on pilgrimage to Lourdes, experiencing mass with Pope Francis in Brazil and being part of school who played a key role in the beatification mass on Blessed John Henry Newman.

It is an honour and privilege to have a job that allows me to link my vocation to my faith on a daily basis. As a teacher, wife and Mum my faith plays a key part in all aspects of my life.
